Outcomes of the teacher's training in Spain

Our Experience, by Yacine Étienne

From April 7th to 11th, 2025, teachers from across Europe gathered in Gran Canaria, Spain 🇪🇸 for an exciting Learning, Teaching, and Training Activity focused on AI concepts 🤖. The event brought together educators from partner countries to explore innovative ways to integrate Artificial Intelligence into their teaching practices and curricula.

The adventure started with a warm welcome and a project coordination meeting, where we discussed the upcoming activities and set the stage for the exciting things ahead 🎯. From there, the training kicked off at CEIP León y Castillo, where participants rolled up their sleeves and dove into the world of AI through practical, hands-on training sessions 🖥️. They came prepared with their devices and explored new AI tools that can enhance their teaching methods and empower students.

But it wasn't all work! After each insightful session, participants had the chance to unwind and explore the island 🌴. They visited the incredible Poema del Mar Aquarium and the Science Museum, while also enjoying a traditional Canarian dinner 🍽️ – a perfect blend of learning and local culture!

On Thursday, the excitement continued at the Universidad de Las Palmas de Gran Canaria, where teachers attended the II Jornadas Educativas Canarias Plurilingüe e Intercultural. The session on AI and Language Teaching by Dr. Fernando Trujillo opened new perspectives on the challenges and possibilities of incorporating AI into the classroom 🤖.

To top it off, we explored the rich cultural heritage of the old city of Las Palmas with a guided tour 🏛️, learning about the history and beauty of the island while using sustainable transport.

This week was truly a perfect mix of AI education, cultural exchange, and sustainability 🌱. We're excited to see how this training will impact teachers and students, and how AI can continue to transform education across Europe! You are curious about our photos, right? Keep following! We will post moments from each day of the training!

Victor Guerra Yáñez

Víctor Guerra (Telecommunications Engineer, 2010; Master's in Intelligent Systems, 2012; PhD in Cybernetics and Telecommunications, 2016) is a researcher with extensive experience in European research projects, having participated in six international initiatives. He is currently the technical leader of the OCC4SAT project, which explores intra-satellite wireless connectivity using cameras and LED devices, with the goal of reducing the complexity of satellite cabling.

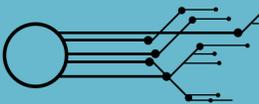

For over a decade, he has been focused on the use of artificial intelligence to optimize wireless communications, addressing challenges such as efficient access, performance, and resource use in networks. He has also applied generative artificial intelligence (GenAI) in education, designing solutions to personalize the learning experience and improve student motivation and engagement.

Fernando Trujillo Sáez

My lines of research and interest are language teaching, interculturality, the educational use of ICT, competence-based curriculum and integrated task- and project-based teaching. In order to develop them, I am part of the research group HUM-840 «Open Knowledge for Social Action», of which I am the coordinator. I have participated, among other projects, in the research of the Joint Research Centre of the European Commission «COVID and Education 2020-21». My latest book is entitled «Learning and teaching in times of confinement» and has been published in September 2020 by Editorial Los Libros de la Catarata. I am a founding partner and scientific advisor of Conecta13, a spin-off of the University of Granada dedicated to consultancy on education, professional development and ICT.
